

Inhalt

Aktuelle Entwicklungen der deutschsprachigen Ingenieurpsychologie	5
Martin Baumann, Lewis Chuang, Sebastian Pannasch, Jürgen Sauer, Joachim Vogt & Christiane Attig
Prävention von zeitlicher Überforderung bei entgrenzter komplexer Wissens- sowie Innovationsarbeit
Möglichkeiten und Grenzen der Zeitbedarfsermittlung – Eine Fallstudie	12
Winfried Hacker
Interruptions at work as risk for high work intensity and their relation to negative short-term consequences of strain – A diary study among tram drivers	28
Therese Kästner, Florian Schweden & Renate Rau
Special Section Editorial: Flexibility at work – Compiling the collective wisdom, challenging conventional thinking, creating shared meaning	43
Severin Hornung & Pierre Sachse
The potential of critical social psychology from a life course perspective for the understanding of subjectified work (Commentary on Höge)	50
Thomas Kühn
Demands in flexible, boundaryless work systems – Do i-deals help or are they part of the problem? (Commentary on Glaser, Hornung & Höge)	53
Jan Dettmers
Employment should be precious not precarious (Commentary on Seubert, Hopfgartner & Glaser)	55
Thomas Rigotti
Boon and bane of a boundaryless world (Commentary on Palm, Hornung & Glaser)	58
Britta Herbig
Task flexibility is a fundamental and perpetually positive job resource, or is it? (Commentary on Hornung, Höge & Rousseau)	61
Andreas Müller & Friedrich Kröner
About workforce control on a higher level (Commentary on Hornung & Höge)	63
Wolfgang G. Weber & Christine Unterrainer	